conditions. The handle has a general elongated shape that is preferably slightly elliptical. In a preferred embodiment, each thumb grip area has a layer of soft non-slip material covering it.

In a preferred embodiment, the bundles of bristles are arranged at 90 degrees to each other. The two diametrically opposed sets of bristles serve dual purposes, depending on the direction of movement or brushing. When the general motion of the brush is perpendicular to the long axis of the bristle, there is a cleaning action. However, if the motion is parallel to the axis then a massaging action is being carried out on the gums. In this configuration, one set of bristles is always cleaning the teeth while the adjacent set is massaging the teeth.

In another embodiment, the bristles are more resilient and rigid than conventional soft and medium bristles. This ensures that the flat working portion of the bristle does not give in and bend too much while brushing.

BRIEF DESCRIPTION OF THE DRAWINGS

Fig. 1A shows a single bristle bent into the functional shape of the bristle in an embodiment of the invention.

Fig. 1B shows a grouping of the bristles shown in Fig. 1A, in a working bristle section in an embodiment of the invention.
